Meet Our Instructors

Meet Andrew
Violin

As a teacher, Williams has been on faculty at the Merit School of Music, teaching violin, viola, and served as string department chair. He was a co-founder of Merit's Solo String Workshop. Andrew also served as Professor of Violin Studies at Carthage College. His students have been accepted to violin performance programs at Northwestern University, University of Toronto, and Peabody. Chamber ensembles coached by Williams have been selected semi-finalists at the prestigious Fischhoff Chamber Competition. Andrew is a member of the Suzuki Association of the Americas, receiving pedagogy training from Ed Kreitman and Michael McLean. Andrew received his Bachelors in violin performance from the Cleveland Institute of Music and his Masters from Rice University.

Congratulations to Our January Student of the Month:

Maren Corlett!

Maren is a trombone student of Alicia MacArthur. She has been taking lessons at Prestige for two and a half years and is a Prodigy on the Musical Ladder. Maren always comes to lessons prepared and her passion for music is evident in her playing. She is a member of multiple ensembles at her high school and is a very dedicated and gifted musician!

Teachers: Don't forget to make your student of the month nominations for Q1. Check your email for the nomination form!

Music Advocacy for Adults

Most people think of music lessons as being an activity for kids or teenagers. Maybe you have your kids enrolled in lessons because you know how beneficial it is for them, but have you ever considered taking music lessons yourself as an adult?

Here are some interesting ways music can enhance your life:

- Music can help with focus and productivity.
- Listening to music can have a positive effect on your heart.
- Music can change the way you perceive the world.
- Research has shown that listening to music can reduce anxiety, blood pressure, and pain.
- Music can improve sleep quality, mood, mental alertness, and memory.

Consider enrolling yourself in lessons and reap the benefits of music in your own life!
